I'm sorry to contact you this way, I don't know where else to do so from, but I need to have a copy of her death certificate, and since she was very private about her SSN and personal information, I was never privy to her SSN to get a copy of our marriage license or her death certificate. For some reason I'd have to have a Texas ID to even request a copy of her certificate, and without her SSN, they won't send me a copy of our marriage license to even get a certificate copy. Is there any way you could provide me with a copy of her death certificate? I can give you my email: wainscott.victoria@yahoo.com (If it gets censored, wainscott . victoria at yahoo . com) to contact me if possible.

I still have the afghan you made her, with the blacklight yarn, as well as the one you gave her that she kept over the recliner, those are all she left behind before going back home. I hope you and your family are doing well.

“ We were separated and she moved back to Texas almost two years ago. I didn't really talk to her much due to the terms our relationship ended on, though she seemed to be happy and getting better. I found out through an old friend of hers, so I only found out last night (25th). She was a very curious, inquisitive person who loved knowledge and her family. She had a contagious laugh and smile, and knew how to make people laugh. I wish her family well (I'm sorry if Tammy texted me, unfortunately I haven't had service in a long time, so I didn't get any messages but I'm available on FB), and hope her girlfriend is doing okay. I hope you all find comfort in knowing she's no longer suffering and is in a better place. She loved you all very much and I know she wants you all to be happy. She loved you, Vincent, Lea, Jemimah, and Allen. She worried about you both, Tammy and Edgar. You were both so very dear to her, she talked about all of you all the time. She loved you all, including Rachel.

“ When I first met her I already had my youngest son. She likes to talk about deep things. She makes the party light up with her laughter. When I found out she died I was crying my eyes out cause I lost more than a friend I lost a sister. My prayers goes to everyone that is hurting at this hard times.

“ I was worried. she didn't call or txt me back. I worked with her for only a Couple of months.I was not expecting to find this. 😭 .She was kind and generous. Very helpful at work. A true team player. Great sense of humor. She would call me her sensei because I trained her. Quick learner. The Last time I saw her it was Friday at work. I didn't know it would be the last time. This truely brakes my heart. I'll miss you friend.

“ I remember one time a year ago, I was having a really tough week at work and Chelsey randomly popped in to say hey. I dropped what I was doing and took a couple minutes to catch up. It helped more than anything to see her smiling face and share a couple laughs with her. She had one of the biggest and warmest hearts of anyone I've met. If you had the pleasure of meeting her I'm sure you know what I'm talking about. She was very smart, loving, and thoughtful sister and will be missed. I cannot properly express how much each and every one of us is going to miss her. How much we will miss her goofy smiles, her quirky dances, the way she can light up a room with a Joke, a warm hug on a cold night, a thought provoking conversation at 3 am with her, her random texts filled with love, Sharing new music with her, or even a new anime we can talk about together.

Beautiful, true words to describe Chelsey. She had a way of giving her undivided attention to you or to whatever she was doing to be completely absorbed in it ...she appreciated the tiniest details about people or to her environment or in what she was doing. She made things feel brand new but at the same time always had something to say that you had not thought of or looked at in that way. Serious but so fun at the same time. Truly unique and one of a kind.

I adore you Vincent and I adored your little sister!!! This is heartbreaking news!!! Chelsea was a beautiful person even as a child. Deep and complex, with wisdom beyond her years and the sweetest smile for anyone that genuinely shared the moment with her. I always thought you two would be the most amazing adults. She will be so missed.

Vincent, I want to extend my most sincere condolences to you & your family. It was an honor to teach you and your sister. You both were always so kind-hearted, dedicated & brilliant students. You all loved to read, write & laugh with your friends. I will always remember that about you two. I am praying for you all.
