“ I remember when your Daddy and I were talking about having a third baby together. We were excited to have one more when that pregnancy test turned positive. We just couldn't wait to find out if we were having another boy or girl. When we found out you were a boy we were so happy. Then one day we got a call from the doctor saying how you had an extra chromosome which caused you to have klinefelter syndrome. You were going to be different, but we didn't care because to us you were still going to be so perfect no matter what. I was excited for the next doctor's appointment because I was finally going to be able to hear your heartbeat. Something I had been waiting for. When I went to my next appointment to check on you, the nurse couldn't find your heartbeat on the Doppler so they went ahead and did a sonogram. The sonogram took place and that's when I noticed you weren't moving and everything was still. She put the sound on and it was quiet. I knew something was wrong. She examined me further and she told me that your heart wasn't beating anymore. I broke down and started crying. I ended up telling your Daddy and grandma the news I just received. The doctor admitted me into the hospital to deliver you my angel baby. You came into this earth with your wings at 2:34 am on August 5th, 2023. I was finally able to hold your tiny body in my arms. I just started crying and held your itty bitty hand in mine. Your Daddy and I just stared and held you in disbelief. We were so excited to meet you, but we didn't think we'd meet you like this. We know you're in a better place now up in heaven with your grandpa Oscar watching over us. Until we meet again our angel baby. We love you so much Ezra Rene Guzman. Love, your Mommy, Daddy, brother, and sister.
