“Hilario was one of my boyhood friends in Fresno, California. He was always smiling and we had a lot of fun together. Not too long ago I recollected to him the time we went to see "The Bad News Bears" on a hot summer day in Fresno in 1976. We both fell in love with Tatum O'Neal (we both were crazy about girls). Hilario and I kept in touch periodically throughout the years after he moved to Texas when we were in junior high school. I missed him then and miss him now. Our mutual friend Eric Garcia and I used to rib him about this story he'd tell about buying 20 pairs of Levis (this when Levis were quite the status symbol). We'd bust his b's about this, but he'd never get mad. (I'm sure he's reading about this now and calling us a few choice names with a smile on his face.) He was a sweet guy and one of those friends you never forget. I wish his family well in dealing with this loss because I'm sure they're devastated as am I. He dealt with his impending death with a positive, brave spirit. In his last email to me a few days ago, he talked about riding into the sunset listening to Bad Company. I won't say I'll miss you because you'll always be in my thoughts. Rest well, my brother.
