Jasiyah Nolan Beiro was born to Cyndi Beiro on July 16, 2013 and left this world to have eternal life with Jesus on January 22, 2014 at Odessa Regional Medical Center.

Throughout his short life Jasiyah touched many with his courage and determination to become stronger and left a lasting impression with his sweet laugh and baby words. He was always happy and had a smile that warmed the heart of everyone who met him. Even those who didn't know him fell in love with him. Jasiyah also was blessed with one and only Aunt Satori Kjenstad; two uncles, Gage and Kannon and so many more family members.

Jasiyah is preceded in death by Carol Brinlee, his guardian angel.

“ I love you son. I still feel you here. Your everywhere i go. Your done having to fight. Your done having to struggle to breath or be sick. Although i wish you couldve stayed with me and be healthy forever, my hearts dances with joy for you. I know God is holding you. I know grandma Carol is holding n kissing you too. Looking into your blue eyes! When she passed away she asked wheres that baby wheres that baby.. When they asked what baby she said Cyndis baby the baby with the blue eyes... Before you were born. I use to think God let her see you alive before she passed... Now i know what she saw was herself holding you in heaven looking into those blue eyes. I miss you so bad words cant explain it.. But i love you so much that im willing to hurt if it means you can forever live with God in the most highest most beautiful everlasting love in heaven and be perfectly happy and safe and healthy beyond recognition. Gods got you now. He'll take care of you and give you what i never could. Until i can be there with you. Everyday before id leave the hospital id say i love you baby ill be back. So thats what im saying now. How I love you so my precious baby and ill be back. Only the next time im back, ill never leave again. See you soon my son. Tell God and Carol i love them. Dance with the angels my chunks your finally home.

“ First time I met Jasiyah he touched my heart. I will never forget his sweet smile and his beautiful blue eyes. This little man was Luke a nephew to me, and although I didn't get to see him as much as I would have liked to, I am blessed that I at least got to hold him once. He was the sweetest baby I have ever met. I will always hold the memories I have of him close to my heart. Jasiyah, you sweet angel, nothing can harm you now, you are safe and sound with the Lord up in heaven. Although you are not physically here, you are here in spirit and in my heart is where you will always stay. You will be forever missed, I love you.

“ "Mothers hold their children's hands for a short while, but their hearts forever."
"The Lord is near to those of a broken heart and saves those who are crushed in spirit." Psl 34:18
Please know how deeply sadden I am at Jasiyah's passing. He's carved out a place in my heart, as he has in so many others. I am thankful the Lord allowed our paths to cross. I will remember his sweet disposition and entertaining conversations. He was a gift and will remain in my heart and memories.
