“ I did not know Nikki prior to her recent hospitalization. I learned very quickly when she smiled, it lit up the room. The love and bond she and her brother James shared was strong (even though she told me sometimes it sucks having a big brother because they are always in your business)... I also learned quickly that Nikki loved her family deeply and was so proud to be going home to be with her Big Momma. James and Shenika please know I am proud of both of you for standing by Nikki and being her voice when she needed you most. I promised you both and Nikki the last time I spoke to her that I would not stop telling her story until someone listened. I know she went home to Heaven and was ready for eternal rest. I pray that each of you find the PEACE in your hearts and yourselves knowing she is at peace and that her story has finally made it to the right place and some finally listened. I am honored that I got to be “the voice for Nikki” that was heard. I pray that the REST is taken care of quickly and justly. May God bless and keep each of you through this storms. Godspeed and rest easy Nikki until we meet again.
